RINGGOLDS TO MEET IN CHARLEROI NEXT YEAR

Veterans Decide in Favor of Magic City as Place for Gathering--Ninety-five Attend Monessen Reunion

EVENING CAMPFIRE IS A BIG FEATURE

Charleroi will be the scene of next year's reunion of the Ringgold Battalion. This was decided at the business session of the battalion held Thursday afternoon at Monessen. Officers were also elected. Monessen entertained the veterans loyally at their fortieth annual meeting. A parade in the evening at 6 o'clock and a campfire immediately following were featured.

Ninety-five survivors of the famous battalion, known officially as the twenty-second Pennsylvania Cavalry, were present for the reunion out of approximately 160 who are still living. Besides the Ringgold men there were 75 members of outside companies registered.

Fifty-four automobiles were used to convey the veterans over the principal streets of the town at the evening parade. The parade was led by Sons of Veterans from Monongahela and the Billie Vernon Rifles on foot. Automobiles were decorated with American flags and the route of parade was made conspicuous by decorations on houses.

Following the parade the campfire was held. H. Dallas McCabe made the address of welcome to the soldiers and it was responded to by Col. A. J. Greenfield, of Chicago, the only surviving regimental officer. Other addresses were made by Joseph A. Bryans of Monongahela, Rev. T. W. Young, of Washington, Harry R. Pore of Monessen, and Rev. M. M. Ailbeck, of Monongahela. Resolutions were adopted thanking the Monessen people for their hospitality, and calling Monessen the "workshop" of the Monongahela valley.

In accord with the plans for holding the reunion in Charleroi next year a Charleroi man was elected president of the association. This was Samuel R. Crawford. Hopkins Moffitt, of East Pike Run was elected vice president, and Norman C. Brown of Charleroi was appointed secretary. Adam Wickerham was the retiring president of the association.

WELL KNOWN MEN ATTEND REUNION

Ringgold Gathering Featured by Presence of Distinguished Ones--One Medal of Honor is Exhibited by Veteran

Some well known men were in Monessen Thursday to attend the annual reunion of the Ringgold Battalion. Among them were Col. A. J. Greenfield, of Chicago, Ill., the only surviving regimental officer, Col. W. E. Griffith of Lodi, Ohio, and Capt. B. Frank Hasser, of White River, S. D. Col. Greenfield and Col. Griffith when seen at the Fifth Avenue hotel in the evening were tied by a willing to talk. Col. Greenfield, tall and grave, showed the effects of time on his physical make-up. They recounted briefly incidents of their life. Col. Greenfield is one who never misses a reunion, and "practically the same might be said of Col. Griffith. At the present time Col. Griffith is the right-of-way agent of the B. and O. railroad with offices at Cincinnati.

Henry C. Slusher, Esq., of Washington displayed what was probably the only medal of honor at the reunion. It was awarded him for bravery at Moorefield. The medal bears the words: "Medal of Honor, the Congress to Henry C. Slusher, Troop F, Ringgold 22nd, Pa. Cavalry, for Gallantry at Moorefield, W. Va., September 11, 1863."

LED A HORSE ON SIDEWALK RECEIVED STOLEN GOODS THE CHARGE

For This Horrible Crime Monessen Constable Pays Fine of $1 and Costs Charleroi Man Sentenced to Pay Fine and Undergo Sentence of Two Months

Constable A. J. Smith of Monessen paid a fine of $1 and costs to Burges George W. Kibbeck Thursday evening for violating the borough ordinance in regard to leading a horse across the sidewalk. The story is told that when Constable Smith came to Charleroi Wednesday afternoon to secure a horse from the stable of Dr. D. E. Kimmell he made the mistake of leading it across the sidewalk as the side of the stable. Chief of Police C. W. Albright telephoned to the constable from Monessen to come over, and when he came, arrested him and took him before the Burgess. He pleaded guilty.

William L. Able, of Charleroi, also known as William Leroy, was convicted Thursday afternoon in the county courts before Judge Holt on a charge of receiving stolen goods. The goods alleged to have been received consisted of a quantity of copper wire taken from the mines of the Monongahela River Consolidated Coal and Coke company. Able was sentenced to pay the costs, fine of $1 and to undergo imprisonment for two months.

Able has heretofore served three months in the workhouse on a conviction on a similar charge in Westmoreland county. Judge Holt, in passing sentence, advised the defendant, when he had served out his time, to keep his hands off other people's property. In passing sentence the court stated it would be taken into consideration the fact that Able had been in jail for two months.

The taking of the copper trolley wire used about mines is a constant source of trouble among coal companies and often the stolen wire is traced into the hands of some dealer in junk. In the defense to the charge, disposed of in this county, Able claimed that he had been convicted in Westmoreland county and had served three months for receiving the same stolen wire for which he was held for receiving by the Washington county court.

A case against Able in Fayette county was not pressed. It was left to the jury to determine whether Able had been heretofore punished for the crime for which he was on trial, and the jury is evidently of the opinion that the wire in question was not the same as figured in the Westmoreland case.

ROUNDHEADS WILL REUNE AT DONORA

The annual reunion of the One Hundredth Regiment, Pennsylvania Volunteers, better known as the "Roundheads," will be held in Donora on Wednesday, September 24. This regiment was organized on August 31, 1861, and was mustered out July 24, 1865. It took part in many campaigns, including Vicksburg, Chickamuga, the battle of the clouds and in Grant's operations before Petersburg and Richmond. Charles F. Anderson, of Webster, is President; William Oliver, of Monongahela first vice president; W. S. Abraham, second vice president; Rev. A. M. Reed, chaplain; George O. Jones, treasurer; James C. Stevenson, secretary, and Laura M. Stevenson, assistant.

THREE-CORNER FIGHT WILL BE BITTER ONE

Politicians in Washington County Watching Developments--Carothers Understood Not to be in Line for Chairmanship

LOOK TO THE MONONGAHELA VALLEY

Three-cornered and bitter the political fight in Washington county this fall is expected to be one of the hottest the county has seen for years. Anxiety is being manifested in every party that is in every party that has a chance of winning one of the county offices. Republicans, Washingtonians and Democrats are all sparring, and individuals from the three parties are ready for the prize.

Also at the reunion was a man who was shot eleven times and still refused to die. This was Charles Bayne, of Westmoreland.

Interesting developments are promised in the county controller election when the final round comes. The present controller, John H. Moffitt, will have to be reckoned with. T. J. Underwood, of California, is being put forth by the Republicans as a candidate. Former Sheriff John C. Murphy has declined to be a candidate for the place, so two safe bets for ballot places at the fall election are Underwood, Republican, and Moffitt, Washingtonian. Winfield Reed, who is connected with a Washington bank and who is a Democrat well known all over the county will fight out with W. H. Ecker, a former newspaper man, the Democratic nomination for controller. The outcome of a three-cornered fight with Underwood, Moffitt, and either of the two Democrats can hardly be guessed, though of the three probably Moffitt is the best known in the county.

Much interest centers in the choice of a Republican chairman for the county. C. E. Carothers is at present the chairman. But he will not be chairman another year. That information comes straight. Perhaps he would like the job, but he does not feel it is stated that it would be good policy for him to serve another year.

The real aspects of the primary fight will be shown when the ballots are printed. The county commissioners have not asked for bids on ballots yet, though there is but a short time remaining in which to get them printed. It is expected that arrangements will be made to receive bids on these the first of next week.

COLD STORAGE LAW IN EFFECT IN THE STATE MONONGAHELA PICNIC HELD AT THE PARK

Housewives and consumers need fear no more the cold storage products which they purchase in Pennsylvania. The recently enacted cold storage law went into effect last Thursday, and State Dairy and Food Commissioner James Foust with his staff chemists and special agents is making the law felt in every direction.

The rectification of all storage evils is being effected, according to Commissioner Foust. From now on each package containing butter, eggs, fish, animal and poultry flesh, which has been in cold storage, must be plainly marked as such and must have the date of its entry into cold storage marked on the package. The system of marking extends from the article sold to the wholesaler by the storeroom to the package sold to the consumer by the retail dealer. An infraction of the law brings a fine and imprisonment.

The new law prohibits absolutely the storage of any but sound food. It limits the storage of beef to four months, pork, sheep and lamb six months; dressed fowl drawn, 5 months; dressed fowl, undrawn, 10 months; eggs, 8 months; and butter and fish, nine months. The law requires temperature of 40 degrees or under.

CONSTABLE ON TRIAL CHARGED WITH ASSAULT PAVING IS ENTIRELY COMPLETED

James Stevenson, constable of Roscoe, was tried before Judge McIlvaine Thursday afternoon on a charge of assault and battery, preferred by Andy Digon. The prosecutor claimed that the officer made an unwarranted attack on him and beat him up with his mace. It appears that the prosecutor was standing on the corner on a street in Roscoe, waiting for his wife who had gone into a fruit store to make a purchase. At the time Constable Stevenson came along and it is claimed shoved Digon off the walk. Digon resented what had been done and this started the trouble. The officer denied exceeding his authority.

Extensive paving work has been completed at North Charleroi by Contractor Thomas Arrigo. All the paving he did was on Fourth street from the school building up to Conrad avenue, which is about 1,000 feet or a fifth of a mile. Hillside block was used. Fourth street, now presents a fine appearance. It is a beautiful residence street.

J. C. Sutherland of Washington, candidate for the Republican nomination for recorder, was in Charleroi Thursday looking to the interests of his candidacy.

THE ART OF HAPPINESS

Writing in an issue of a recently published magazine Mrs. Havelock Ellis tells us in effect that the millennium is at hand. She discovers that "the poor, ignorant human who fancies that happiness consists in piling up gold or wasting it, is today enduring a crucifixion of fear and insecurity."

"The trend of the age is against the short-sighted ideas of happiness," continues Mrs. Ellis. "As it is now almost a disgrace to be rich or unhappy, because today the only truly happy folk are those who do not care about a happiness which implies only comfort, gain, rest or peace for themselves."

While it is undoubtedly true that these conditions will prevail when the world attains the perfection and beauty which to mark the end of development, to see no indication that the halcyon day has arrived. Mrs. Ellis has perceived a fact clearly, but she has made no revelations. The same thought was emphasized by Christ and even by some of the pagans.

The True Source of Beauty

is, and must be, good health. Sallow skin and face blemishes are usually caused by the presence of impurities in the blood—impurities which also cause headache, backache, languor, nervousness and depression of spirits. If, at times, when there is need you will use philosophers who antedated him by hundreds of years. "The poor ignorant human who fancies that happiness consists in piling up gold or wasting it" has always endured "a crucifixion of fear and insecurity."

The head that wears the crown, either of authority or of fortune, has rested uneasily from the beginning of time.

And when Mrs. Ellis tells us that the trend of the age is against the pursuit of riches as a medium of happiness, we wonder what has paralyzed her powers of observation. Though we are all well aware, as we have been for many centuries, that money cannot bring happiness, we are thirsting for it today, working for it, grasping for it, fighting for it, defiling ourselves for it, piling and wasting it as we have never done before in the history of the race.

That it has become "a disgrace to be ill," is news to most of us in this era of fashionable "inventions" and high-priced nerve specialists and if there are any indications that the comfort and luxury and show of fortune are to be eschewed in the future, Mrs. Ellis alone has discerned them.

Where is the woman who can be happy with one gown whose neighbor has two? Where is the housekeeper who is not straining every nerve to "keep up with Lizzy"? Where is the man who does not smoke better cigars than he can afford because men who can afford it smoke better ones?

Where is there a competition so continuous and so keen as the competition to "keep up appearances?"

Wealth and luxury are still numbered among our Lares and Penates. We speak about them in a different way, perhaps, affecting to belittle them, even while we are panting in the chase; but it is only the deceit of the age. We have our Carnegies, who yearn to die poor, and don't; our Perkinses and our McCormicks, who weep for the wrongs of the poor, and wrong them more than others who do not weep; our soul-inflamed Corneys, who march at the head of ragged, desperate armies, only to desert them for fashionable turns.

We have cant and hypocrisy on all sides and among all classes, but the pursuit of that happiness which is not happiness is as eager and as foolish as it was in the days of Midas.

There are some things we know, but cannot attain. The beauty of perfect goodness is one of them. They merit of absolute indifference to gold is another.

MONUMENTS TO FREEDOM

Any time a reunion of soldiers is impressive, but it is most impressive when participated in by veterans such as gathered at Monessen during the week. It is impressive not to say pitiful and saddening to witness the gathering of the tottering but grim survivors of the awful struggle which meant freedom for a class of human beings whose only fault was in being of another color.

These old soldiers of ours are monuments to our national freedom. The bitterness that once existed between the north and south arising from differences over the question of slavery no longer exists, and the north and the south solidly united is unitedly glad that it is so.

What the people of today can do for these veterans is perhaps not much, but they can at least show appreciation of their deeds and reverence the memories of their departed. That is what Charleroi must prepare for in the coming reunion of the Ringgold Battalion a year hence.

Nautical Terms.

Terms used aboard ship are interesting and much in collision be useful. Toward the ship's head is forward (pronounced for-ward). The opposite direction is aft.

Looking forward and to the right is starboard; to the left is port. The quarter from which the wind blows is windward; its opposite is to leeward pronounced loo-ard.

A scuttle is a window on board ship; a stairway is a companion ladder; a bed is a bunk; a kitchen range is a galley. This term is also applied to the captain's own boat. The forecastle (pronounced fo-cast-le) is any covered in place in the bows. A knot is a speed of one sea mile per hour, 6,080 feet. The ship wears a flag; that is the correct term. Passages are gangways.

Bollards are stout pillars round which run the hawsers—steel wire ropes. The bridge is sacred to the captain and officers.—London Tit-Bits.

PICKED UP IN PASSING

At the Rostraver harvest home picnic held last Saturday in Rostraver township, relates C. B. Copeland, of Charleroi, several good stories were told, among them being one that originated with the famous Sam Jones, evangelist. An evangelist was conducting services at a certain place. In his discourse one evening he said:

"If there is a perfect man or a perfect woman here, let them stand! Nobody stood. Of course that met with the evangelist's idea of propriety, so he requested:

"If there is anyone here who ever saw a perfect man or a perfect woman, will they stand up?"

Slowly in the rear part of the room a woman with care-worn features arose. The evangelist was dumfounded, but he managed to ask:

"Well, my good woman, you say you have seen a perfect person. Would you mind telling who it was?"

"Why, yass," she replied in a thin voice. "I don't know as I mind tellin' ye. It was my husband's first wife."

An attorney representing a woman, charged in juvenile court with neglecting her three children, subpoenaed several character witnesses to show that his client's reputation for the care of her children was good. A Russian, who has often been in court for neglecting his large family, was called as one of the witnesses. In answer to questions he told the court that he knew the defendant to be a woman of good character who cared for her children.

"Please state to the court," said the deputy prosecutor, in a cross-examination, "just how many times you have been arrested and tried in the last year for neglecting your nine children."

"I don't know," was the answer. "Isn't it true that you are under a suspended sentence to the workhouse on that charge now?"

"Yes sir."

"You are waiting now to be tried for neglecting your own nine children and ignoring an order of this court? Your case is next, is it not?"

"Yes sir."

"That is all," said the prosecutor. The woman was found guilty.

THE MAN IN DOUBT

By M. QUAD

Copyright, 1913, by Associated Literary Press.

As I traveled a mountain road of West Virginia I came upon a squatter seated on a log in front of his pole cabin, and after we had given each other good day he asked:

"Bound for the camp meetin' at Cedar Grove, stranger?"

"I hadn't heard there was one there," I replied.

"Yes, and it's a whooper. Powerful lot of prayin' and singin' over thar."

"Aren't you interested in it?"

"I ar and I hain't. I sorter want to go, and then I sorter think I hadn't better. That's the way with the old woman too."

"You think there may be trouble there?"

"Oh, no."

"Too busy with your work?"

"No, stranger. The Lawd order be at that camp meetin', hadn't he?"

"I should say so."

"And he order gin us a fair deal if the old woman and me went over?"

"Yes."

"But what I'm afraid of is that he won't."

I looked at him and wondered what he meant, and after a minute he went on:

"Sit down and be to home, and I'll tell you a bit of a story. It happened yars ago. Yass, me and the old woman had a bin havin' chills and fever, shakin' like scared rabbits one day and a-burnin' up the next, and I was almost too weak to lift an ax when a feller named Abe Brockford set out to humiliate me. He wasn't doin' any braggin' as long as I was able to be about, but when he heard how poorly I was he squared off in front of the cabin one night and shouted:

"Hello thar, inside! Am I makin' a mistake in supposin' this to be the residence of Bill Hope?"

"Yo' ain't," says I as I crawls to the door in my weakness.

"Come out like a man and squar' off at me," says he.

"I told him I'd been freezin' and burnin' and couldn't fight a rabbit, but that only made him wuss."

"Bill Hope, if yo've got any mercy in yo'r heart come out yere and dance around while I pulverize yo'r bones!"

"It hurt me mighty bad to be talked to that way," said the old man, "but I was helpless about it. All I could do was to shut the door and fling myself on the bed and cuss and weep. The old woman tried to console me, but the feller kept his mouth goin' till I was purty nigh crazy. By and by I says to her:

"Do yo' reckon that if I prayed to the Lawd for strength my prayer would be answered?"

"That's accordin'," she answers.

"What do yo' want the strength for?"

"To go out and smash Abe Brockford."

"Then yo' won't git it. The Lawd ain't mixin' up in sich rows."

"But he might if yo' prayed too."

"But I shan't do it. When the critter out thar gits tired of talkin' he'll go home."

"I lay quiet for half an hour, but Abe didn't go, and when the old woman sees how bad I was feelin' she says:

"Bill, I'm willin' to try a sort of experiment. It ain't right to bother the Lawd with our troubles, and prayers and fightin' don't go together, but under the circumstances I'll do what I kin."

"All of a sudden I begun to feel stronger, and by the time the old woman had finished I told her that I was all right to go out an' drive Abe into the nirth."

"Better not go," she says as she looks troubled.

"Why not?"

"Bekase I'm not suah about it. I prayed hard 'nuff, but I haven't got the feelin' that yo' are gwine out to whop anybody. Sorter feels to me that yo'll git the worst of it."

"It was mighty cur'us about my gittin' strong," mused Bill, "and to this day I can't make it out. Perhaps it was all owing to my madness. The old woman hung on fur me not to go, but I put her aside and rushed out. It was a darkish night, but I saw Abe standin' a few feet away and sailed fur him. I was gwine to whop him blind in two minits, but I hadn't counted on startin' things. Fustly, the critter had got tired and gone home, and secondly, a powerful big bar had taken his place. I knowed it as I grabbed his fur, but it was then too late. He jest hauled off with his right paw and fetched me a swat on the side of the head that put me out of it, and it was daylight befo' I come to and found myself on the bed."

"What's happened?" I asked of the old woman.

"Experimentin'," she answers.

"As how?"

"Prayin' to the Lawd to back yo' to wallop Abe Brockford. Abe slipped out and a bar slipped in, and as nigh as I kin make out Providence didn't stand by yo' fur shucks."

"And that's the reason you are in doubt about going to the camp meetin', is it?" I asked as he finished his story.

"It ar, stranger."

"But I don't exactly see the point."

"Plain as mud, sakh. I'd go thar to fight Sataa, wouldn't I?"

"In a way, yes."

"And s'pose the Lawd would slip him out on me and slip a half dozen wildcats in on me to take his place!"

WHY HE SOLD IT

By RUTH GRAHAM

"I hear," said Jones to Rogers, "that you have sold your automobile."

"I have."

Jones was surprised at the man giving up the auto sport, for he had been an enthusiastic automobilist.

"Had an upset?"

"No."

"Found it cost too much to keep the machine in repair, I reckon."

"Not that, either."

"Well, then," looking at a handsome collier that was evidently in Rogers' company, "you've set up a dog instead of a car as less expensive and more amusing."

"I sold my auto for $600, and you couldn't buy the dog for $6,000."

"Did you pay that for him?"

"No; I didn't pay anything."

"Come; what does it all mean?"

Rogers asked Jones into the house and told the story:

"My friends always supposed from the speed I put on while traveling through the country on good straight roads that I was perfectly fearless. It wasn't so at all. I realized the danger of fast traveling, but I enjoyed the sport so well that I was willing to take the risk. Fact is, danger always adds to the zest of sport. The very thought that I might burst a tire at any moment and swerve into a telegraph pole or a stone fence gave me a pleasurable thrill. Besides these was the danger of some drunken driver coming along with a wild yelp and knocking me into the middle of next week."

"Well," interrupted Jones, "which was it that cured you of automobilizing?"

"Who's telling this story—you or I?"

"You. Go on."

"Nothing broke in my machine and nobody ran into me. My auto was as good as ever except for several years' use, and I never had a spill while I drove her. I don't know for certain, but I think if I had been tossed through the wind shield and shot a dozen yards forward without getting killed I would have been all the better for autoing."

"But I'm not getting on with my story. I was driving along one day at a forty mile gait when, looking ahead, I saw a place where the road ran through a narrow cut. It wasn't a turnpike by any means, but one of those country roads in which, when teams meet, one must pull up in the best place to let the other pass. The narrow bit I was telling you about was just wide enough to get through without scraping. On either side the ground sloped at an angle quite capable of overturning a car, no matter how slow it was moving. I craned my neck to see if any one was coming that I would meet in the cut. I didn't see an auto or a wagon, but I did see something that sent a cold chill through me—a little child toddling about right in between the two banks."

"It was near dark, and I didn't see what was in the way till I was almost on it. I gave a warning toot, but it didn't even attract the child's attention. It was so young that I couldn't tell whether it was a boy or a girl, but by its dress I concluded it was a girl. She was making a dirt heap in the road. As to age, she must have been between two or three years old."

"So much went through my mind in a few seconds that it seems there wasn't time for it all. I knew there must be a house near by or the child wouldn't have been there. I glanced to the right and the left and on the left saw a small cottage about 200 feet from the road. How I did long for some one to run from the house to get the child out of my way! But when I saw her there wasn't time for any one to go over half the distance. I looked at the right bank to see if it would be possible to run up over it without my machine turning turtle. There was no possibility of climbing it without going over on the child, if not on myself. The left bank was worse than the right."

"I've heard what an awful strain it is on a locomotive engineer to run down a human being, but had no conception of the horror of it till now. I put on my emergency brake, or tried to, but I was so rattled that I lost time in getting my foot on it. By the time I was pretty near the child I was going slow enough, but—great Scott!—what difference does it make how slow you're going when you run over a soft little bundle of flesh like that?"

"I had given up all hope when of a sudden I saw a yellow streak making from the house to the child. It was a dog, and I've never seen a train or an auto that seemed to get over the ground so quick. He made a bee line for the child, who was between the middle and the side of the road, fixed his teeth in her dress and yanked her toward the bank, getting her just on to it as I went by at the rate of about four miles an hour and stopped not twenty feet away."

"The child's mother came out, and when she learned how near death the little thing had been she pretty near fainted."

"You'll never get me into an auto again. It's one thing to get tossed over a telegraph wire yourself, but when it comes to killing a little child I'm not in it."

"I don't blame you," said Jones, "but it usually requires killing some one rather than just missing it to give a man the horrors."

How Rough Diamonds Shrink.
The loss in weight in diamonds when going through the process of cleaving and chipping and polishing amounts to from 50 to 60 per cent on the average. Accordingly, the price of a rough diamond will have to be advanced in the finished brilliant, aside from all other expenses, at least twice to three times. With the well known "solitaires" the loss in weight is even greater, because it is necessary to chip off so much more. Thus, the diamond Excelsior, which, in its crude raw state, weighed 97 1/2 carats, produced two brilliants, weighing together only 340 13-32 carats, with a loss in weight of 65 per cent; and the Cullinan, originally weighing 3,024 carats, was reduced to only 680 carats, with a loss of 77 3-5 per cent.

Have the Best Last.
He who eats the best grapes from a bunch first and finishes with the poorest on the stem is likely to feel at the end that grapes are very unsatisfactory and that he does not care for any more. But if the last few grapes are good he is more than likely to reach for another bunch. And so it goes with all the gastronomic affairs of life. The dinner that starts off with a very poor soup and works through a mediocre fish to a fair entree, an excellent roast and a superb salad, concluding with unimpeachable coffee and a dessert fit for a queen, leaves a far better impression than a dinner that starts with excellent soup and progresses "downward" steadily to an atrocious fish—Presidents Journal.

Don't Hide Them With a Veil; Remove Them With the Othine Prescription

This prescription for the removal of freckles was written by a prominent physician and is usually so successful in removing freckles and giving a clear, beautiful complexion that it is sold by your druggist under an absolute guarantee to refund the money if it fails.

Don't hide your freckles under a veil; get an ounce of othine and remove them. Even the first few applications should show a wonderful improvement, some of the lighter freckles vanishing entirely.

Be sure to ask the druggist for the double strength othine; it is this that is sold on the money-back guarantee.

THE PALACE—CHARLEROI

One of the chief features of a week that was replete with exceedingly meritorious productions at the Palace theatre was "The Tiger Lily" presented in three reels on Tuesday. This Vitagraph film shows how a woman, as "fair as the lily" and as "fiery and revengeful as the tiger" in seeking the destruction of her own flesh and blood to satisfy her vanity and jealousy, meets her doom. The story is one of love and of hate in which a tiger plays a real part. Of course everything turns out satisfactory in the end, but the production of the picture is thrilling and the story is unusual. A Selig picture, "A Wild Ride" was shown in two reels as a special. Monday night's productions were "A Millinery Bomb" and "A Thief in the Night." On Thursday "Her Only Boy," a Lubin film and "The Smuggler," a Kalem film was shown. For Saturday a special is being announced in "Convict No. 482." The story is said to be an unusual one. Monday night of next week will be featured by a three-reel production "Folly of Crime." Like the Saturday feature this is understood to be an unusual production, in which there is some of the finest acting to be seen in any picture.

THE COYLE—CHARLEROI

How a woman's love for a man is unchangeable in spite of affliction and trouble was demonstrated in a picture that was produced as a special three-reel film as the Coyle this week. The title of the drama was "Greater Call." A woman loved a man and they were engaged. Another steps in and falls in love with the woman. Then after the lovers have been separated by the removal of one into the city, the man to whom the woman is engaged is hurt in a quarry accident. She does not know this and receiving no reply from her letters takes up with the city man as her new lover. Eventually she hears of the quarry accident and dropping preparations for her marriage to another, hastens to her first lover. The close shows where they are happily engaged. Other features of the week were: Monday "The Yogi," "Princess of the Valley," "Life Savers"; Tuesday, "Her Supreme Sacrifice," "Lawbreakers," "Broken Spell"; Thursday "Last of the Madisons" and "Fallen Angel." The film, "Robinson Crusoe" has been booked for presentation shortly. It is understood to be a particularly good picture.

THE LYRIC—CHARLEROI

Showing the fraternal spirit that causes a brother to serve and protect the interests of the straying member of his family, one of the best human interest films ever produced was shown on Monday of this week at the Lyric Theatre. The film "A Brother's Loyalty" was one where the

Veterans Decide in Favor of Magic City as Place for Gathering--Ninety-five Attend Monessen Reunion

EVENING CAMPFIRE IS A BIG FEATURE

Charleroi will be the scene of next year's reunion of the Ringgold Battalion. This was decided at the business session of the battalion held Thursday afternoon at Monessen. Officers were also elected. Monessen entertained the veterans loyally at their fortieth annual meeting. A parade in the evening at 6 o'clock and a campfire immediately following were features.

Ninety-five survivors of the famous battalion, known officially as the twenty-second Pennsylvania Cavalry, were present for the reunion out of approximately 160 who are still living. Besides the Ringgold men there were 75 members of outside companies registered.

Fifty-four automobiles were used to convey the veterans over the principal streets of the town at the evening parade. The parade was led by Sons of Veterans from Monongahela and the Belle Vernon Rifles on foot. Automobiles were decorated with American flags and the route of parade was made conspicuous by decorations on houses.

Following the parade the campfire was held. H. Dallas McCabe made the address of welcome to the soldiers and it was responded to by Col. A. J. Greenfield, of Chicago, the only surviving regimental officer. Other addresses were made by Joseph A. Bryans of Monongahela, Rev. T. W. Young, of Washington, Harry R. Pore of Monessen, and Rev. M. M. Allbeck, of Monongahela. Resolutions were adopted thanking the Monessen people for their hospitality, and calling Monessen the "workshop" of the Monongahela valley.

In accord with the plans for holding the reunion in Charleroi next year a Charleroi man was elected president of the association. This was Samuel R. Crawford. Hopkins Moffitt, of East Pike Run was elected vice president, and Norman C. Brown of Charleroi was appointed secretary. Adam Wickerham was the retiring president of the association.

Eleven members of the Ringgold

Battalion died during the year. They were: Capt. A. J. Greenfield, of Company B; James N. Woodson, of Company C; Jerry Myers, of Company E and the following from Company F: Ada W. Crouch, William Crawford, Jacob Maxwell, C. S. Long, James Armstrong, J. H. Rogers, W. H. Mosler and William Gardner.

The history of the Ringgold Battalion is most interesting. Composed of several companies of cavalry recruited from Washington County, the Ringgold Battalion was a free lance organization. Attached to the Department of West Virginia, it did scouting duty chiefly, and was in the van of some of the most desperate fighting of the war. In 1848 a militia company of the cavalry was organized and was called the Ringgold Battalion in honor of Major Ringgold, a distinguished officer of the Mexican war from Western Pennsylvania who entered the United States service at Gratton, W. Va., on June 22, 1861, they were assigned to duty in that state. Andrew Jackson Greenfield who had gone from Beallsville to Baltimore, Md., to engage in business returned to Beallsville and recruited a company of cavalry. He tendered his services to the government and was accepted. The command became known as the Independent Washington cavalry and was mustered into the service on August 15, 1861 and later affiliated with the Ringgolds. These two served as independent companies until the fall of 1862, when Captain Key's company was joined by five others, all recruited in Washington county and became known as the Ringgold Battalion. On March 25, 1864, all seven companies were formed into a battalion with Lieut. A. J. Greenfield, commanding. Very shortly afterwards with five companies from the eastern part of the state they were formed into the twenty-second Pennsylvania cavalry. As a regiment, the Ringgold took part in 58 battles and skirmishes. They captured the first Confederate flag in the Civil War at Cold Springs.

WELL KNOWN MEN ATTEND REUNION

Ringgold Gathering Featured by Presence of Distinguished Ones--One Medal of Honor is Exhibited by Veteran

Some well known men were in Monessen Thursday to attend the annual reunion of the Ringgold Battalion. Among them were Col. A. J. Greenfield, of Chicago, Ill., the only surviving regimental officer, Col. W. E. Griffith, of East Ohio and Capt. R. Frank Harrison, of White River, S. D.

Col. Greenfield, tall and thin, in the evening wore a blue suit and tie, and showed the effects of time on his physical makeup. They recognized Col. Griffith as the man who was shot eleven times and still refused to die. This was Charles Bayne, of Washington.

Henry C. Slusher, Esq., of Washington displayed what was probably the only medal of honor at the reunion. It was awarded him for bravery at Moorefield. The medal bears the words: "Medal of Honor, the Congress to Henry C. Slusher, Troop F, Ringgold Battalion, September 11, 1863."

Mr. Slusher attempted to save a wounded comrade at Moorefield. In doing so he was wounded six times below the left knee with sabers and bayonets. In the arm and in the breast. In fact he still has bullet holes under the skin of his breast.

Also at the reunion was a man who was shot eleven times and still refused to die. This was Charles Bayne, of Washington.

LED A HORSE ON SIDEWALK RECEIVED STOLEN GOODS THE CHARGE

For This Horrible Crime Monessen Constable Pays Fine of $1 and Costs Charleroi Man Sentenced to Pay Fine and Undergo Sentence of Two Months

Constable A. J. Smith of Monessen paid a fine of $1 and costs to Burgess George W. Ribbeck Thursday evening for violating the borough ordinance in regard to leading a horse across the sidewalk. The story is told that when Constable Smith came to Charleroi Wednesday afternoon to secure a horse from the stable of Dr. D. E. Kimmell he made the mistake of leading it across the sidewalk as the side of the stable. Chief of Police C. W. Albright telephoned to the constable from Monessen to come over, and when he came, arrested him and took him before the burgess. He pleaded guilty.

William L. Able, of Charleroi, also known as William Leroy, was convicted Thursday afternoon in the county courts before Judge Holt on a charge of receiving stolen goods. The goods alleged to have been received consisted of a quantity of copper wire taken from the mines of the Monongahela River Consolidated Coal and Coke company. Able was sentenced to pay the costs, fine of $1 and to undergo imprisonment for two months.

Able has heretofore served three months in the workhouse on a conviction on a similar charge in Westmoreland county. Judge Holt, in passing sentence, advised the defendant, when he had served out his time, to keep his hands off other people's property. In passing sentence the court stated it would be taken into consideration the fact that Able had been in jail for two months.

The taking of the copper trolley wire used about mines is a constant source of trouble among coal companies and often the stolen wire is traced into the hands of some dealer in junk. In the defense to the charge disposed of in this county Able claimed that he had been convicted in Westmoreland county and had served three months for receiving the same stolen wire for which he was held for receiving by the Washington county court.

A case against Able in Fayette county was not pressed. It was left to the jury to determine whether Able had been heretofore punished for the crime for which he was on trial, and the jury is evidently of the opinion that the wire in question was not the same as figured in the Westmoreland case.

Ringgolds Returning Home A number of the members of the Ringgold Battalion were in Charleroi this morning on their way home from Monessen where they attended the annual reunion of the command.

ROUNDHEADS WILL REUNE AT DONORA

The annual reunion of the One Hundredth Regiment, Pennsylvania Volunteers, better known as the "Roundheads," will be held in Donora on Wednesday, September 24. This regiment was organized on August 31, 1861, and was mustered out July 24, 1865. It took part in many campaigns, including Vicksburg, Chickamauga, the battle of the clouds and in Grant's operations before Petersburg and Richmond. Charles F. Anderson, of Webster, is President; William Oliver, of Monongahela, first vice president; W. S. Abraham, second vice president; Rev. A. M. Reed, chaplain; George O. Jones, treasurer; James C. Stevenson, secretary, and Laura M. Stevenson, assistant.

Politicians in Washington County Watching Developments--Carothers Understood Not to be in Line for Chairmanship

LOOK TO THE MONONGAHELA VALLEY

Three-cornered and bitter the political fight in Washington county has been for years. Anxiety is being manifested in every party, that is in every party that has a chance of winning some of the county-plans. Republicans, Washingtonians and Democrats are all sparring, and individuals from the three are getting ready for the primaries. However, the fight at the primary will compare to the fight at the fall election about like a pig to a war.

Interesting developments are promised in the county controller district when the final round comes the present controller, John H. Moffitt, will have to be reckoned with. T. J. Underwood, of California, is being put forth by the Republicans as a candidate. Former Sheriff John C. Murphy has declined to be a candidate for the place, so two safe bets for ballot places at the fall election are Underwood, Republican and Moffitt, Washingtonian. Winfield Reed, who is connected with a Washington bank and who is a Democrat will be known all over the county will fight it with W. H. Fisher, a former newspaper man, the Democratic nomination for controller. The outcome of a three-cornered fight with Underwood, Moffitt, and either of the two Democrats can hardly be guessed, though of the three probably Moffitt is the best known in the county.

Much interest centers in the choice of a Republican chairman for the county. C. E. Carothers is at present the chairman. But he will not be chairman another year. That information comes straight. Perhaps he would like the job, but he does not feel it is stated that it would be good policy for him to serve another year. The real aspects of the primary fight will be shown when the ballots are printed. The county commissioners have not asked for bids on ballots yet, though there is but a short time remaining in which to get them printed. It is expected that arrangements will be made to receive bids on these the first of next week.

Not very much has been said thus far about recorder, but J. C. Sutherland, the present incumbent, was along the valley Thursday looking up voters. He is seeking the nomination on the Republican ticket. The Democratic aspirant for the place, Joseph Martin, will bear watching. Alex D. Young, deputy recorder to Mr. Sutherland is after the Washington nomination. These three look good as nominees; and the real fight will come at the general election.

COLD STORAGE LAW IN EFFECT IN THE STATE

Housewives and consumers need fear no more the cold storage products which they purchase in Pennsylvania. The recently enacted cold storage law went into effect last Thursday, and State Dairy and Food Commissioner James Foust with his staff chemists and special agents is making the law felt in every direction.

The rectification of all storage evils is being effected, according to Commissioner Foust. From now on each package containing butter, eggs, fish, animal and poultry flesh, which has been in cold storage, must be plainly marked as such and must have the date of its entry into cold storage marked on the package. The system of marking extends from the article sold to the wholesaler by the storeroom to the package sold to the consumer by the retail dealer. An infraction of the law brings a fine and imprisonment.

The new law prohibits absolutely the storage of any but sound food. It limits the storage of beef to four months, pork, sheep and lamb six months; dressed fowl drawn, 5 months; dressed fowl, undrawn, 10 months; eggs, 8 months; and butter and fish, nine months. The law requires temperature of 40 degrees or under.

CONSTABLE ON TRIAL CHARGED WITH ASSAULT

James Stevenson, constable of Roscoe, was tried before Judge Melvaine Thursday afternoon on a charge of assault and battery, preferred by Andy Digon. The prosecutor claimed that the officer made an unwarranted attack on him and beat him up with his mace. It appears that the prosecutor was standing on the corner on a street in Roscoe, waiting for his wife who had gone into a fruit store to make a purchase. At the time Constable Stevenson came along and it is claimed shoved Digon off the walk. Digon resented what had been done and this started the trouble. The officer denied exceeding his authority.

PAVING IS ENTIRELY COMPLETED

Extensive paving work has been completed at North Charleroi by Contractor Thomas Arrigo. All the paving he did was on Fourth street from the school building up to Conrad avenue, which is about 1,000 feet or a fifth of a mile. Hillside block was used. Fourth street, now presents a fine appearance. It is a beautiful residence street.

J. C. Sutherland of Washington, candidate for the Republican nomination for recorder, was in Charleroi Thursday looking to the interests of his candidacy.

THE ART OF HAPPINESS

Writing in an issue of a recently published magazine Mrs. Havelock Ellis tells us in effect that the milien-nium is at hand. She discovers that "the poor, ignorant human who fancies that happiness consists in piling up gold or wasting it, is today enduring crucifixion of fear and insecurity."

"The trend of the age is against his short-sighted ideas of happiness," continues Mrs. Ellis. "As it is now almost a disgrace to be ill, it will soon be a disgrace to be rich or unhappy, because today the only truly happy folk are those who do not care about a happiness which implies only comfort, gain, rest or peace for themselves."

While it is undoubtedly true that these conditions will prevail when the world attains the perfection and beatitude which to mark the end of development, to see no indication that the halcyon day has arrived. Mrs.
Ellis has perceived a fact clearly, but she has made no revelations. The same thought was emphasized by Christ and even by some of the pagan philosophers who antedated him by hundreds of years. "The poor ignorant human who fancies that happiness consists in piling up gold or wasting it" has always endured "a crucifixion of fear and insecurity."

The head that wears the crown, either of authority or of fortune, has rested uneasily from the beginning of time.
And when Mrs. Ellis tells us that the trend of the age is against the pursuit of riches as a means of happiness, we wonder what has paralyzed her powers of observation.
Though we are all well aware, as we have been for many centuries, that money cannot bring happiness, we are thirsting for it today, working for it, grasping for it, fighting for it, defiling ourselves for it, piling and wasting it as we have never done before in the history of the world.

That it has become "a disgrace to be ill," is news to most of us in this era of fashionable notions and unfounded self-specialisms and if there are any indications that the comfort and luxury and show of fortune are to be eschewed in the future,
Mrs. Ellis alone has discerned them.

Where is the woman who can be happy with one who is not happy?
Where is the horsekeeper who is not straining every nerve to "keep up with Lizzie"? Where is the man who does not smoke better cigars than he can afford because men who can afford to smoke better ones where is there a competitor so continuous and so keen as the competition to "keep up appearances?"

Wealth and luxury are still numbered among our Lures and Penates.
We speak about them in a different way, perhaps, affecting to belittle them, even while we are panting in the chase, but it is only the deiceit of the age. We have our Carnegies, who yearn to die poor, and don't, our Perciwases and our McCormicks, who weep for the wrongs of the poor, and wince them more than others who do not weep, our soul-inflamed Coleys,
who march at the head of ragged, unfortunate armies, only to desert them
for fashionable turns.

We have cant and hypocrisy on all sides and among all classes, but the pursuit of that happiness which is not happiness is as eager and as foolish
as it was in the days of Midas.
There are some things we know, but cannot attain. The beauty of perfect goodness is one of them. They merit of absolute indifference to gold is another.

MONUMENTS TO FREEDOM
Any time a reumon of soldiers is impressive, but it is most impressive when participated in by veterans such as gathered at Monessen during the week. It is impressive not to say pitiful and saddening to witness the gathering of the tottering but grim survivors of the awful struggle which meant freedom for a class of human beings whose only fault was in being of another color.

These old soldiers of ours are monuments to our national freedom. The bitterness that once existed between the north and south arising from differences over the question of slavery no longer exists, and the north and the south solidly united is unitedly glad that it is so.

What the people of today can do for these veterans is perhaps not much, but they can at least show appreciation of their deeds and reverence the memories of their departed. That is what Charleroi must prepare for in the coming reunion of the Ringgold Battalion a year hence.

Nautical Terms.
Terms used aboard ship are interesting and might be of use to some folks. Toward the ship's head is forward (pronounced for-ward). The opposite direction is aft.

Looking forward and to the right is starboard; to the left is port. The quarter from which the wind blows is windward; its opposite is to leeward unwindward leeward.

A scuttle is a window on board ship;
a bunk is a kitchen range is a galley. This term is also applied to the captain's own boat. The forecabin (pronounced for-cabin) is any covered place in the bows. A knot is a speed of one sea mile per hour, 6,080 feet.
The ship wears a flag; that is the correct term. Passages are gangways.
Bollards are stout pillars round which run the hawsers—steel wire ropes. The bridge is sacred to the captain and officers.—London Tit-Bits.

PICKED UP IN PASSING

At the Rostraver harvest home picnic held last Saturday in Rostrav-er township relates C. R. Copeland, of Charleroi, several good stories were told, among them being one that originated with the famous Sam-Jones, evangelist. An evangelist was conducting services at a certain place. In his discourse one evening he said:

"If there is a perfect man or a perfect woman here, let them stand!"
Nobody stood. Of course that met with the evangelist's idea of propiety, so he requested:
"If there is anyone here who ever saw a perfect man or a perfect woman, will they stand up?"

Slowly in the rear part of the room
a woman with care-worn features arose. The evangelist was dumfounded, but he managed to ask:

"Well, my good woman, you say you have seen a perfect person. Would your mind telling who it was?"
"I don't know as I mind tellin' it ye. It was my husband's first wife."

An elderly man, wearing a woman's, charged in juvenile court with neglecting her three children, sub-pened several character witnesses to vouch for her reputation for the care of her children was good.

A Russian, who has often been in court for neglecting his large family, was called as one of the witnesses.
In answer to questions he told the court that he knew the defendant to be a woman of good character who cared for her children.

"Please state to the court," said the deputy prosecutor, in cross-examination, "just how many times you have been arrested and tried in the last year for neglecting your nine children?"

"I don't know" was the answer.
"Isn't it true that you are under a suspended sentence to the workhouse for that charge now?"
"Yes sir."

You are waiting now to be tried for neglecting your own nine children and ignoring an order of this court?
"Yes sir, it is not?"
"Yes sir."

That is all," said the prosecutor.
The woman was found guilty.

THE MAN IN DOUBT

By M. QUAD
Copyright, 1913, by Associated Literary Press

As I traveled a mountain road of West Virginia I came upon a squatter seated on a log in front of his pole cabin, and after we had given each other good day he asked:

"Bound for the camp meetin' at Cedar Grove, stranger?"

"I hadn't heard there was one there,"
I replied.

"Yes, and it's a whopper. Powerful lot of prayin' and singin' over there."

"Aren't you interested in it?"

"I ar and I hain't. I sorter want to go, and then I sorter think I hadn't better. That's the way with the old woman too."

"You think there may be trouble
there?"

"Oh, no."

"Too busy with your work?"

"No, stranger. The Lawd order be at that camp meetin', hadn't he?"

"And he order you us a fair deal if the old woman and me went over?"

"Yes."

"But what I'm afraid of is that he won't."

I looked at him and wondered what he meant, and after a minute he went on:

"I'll tell you a bit of a story. It happened last year, and me and the old woman had a bad chill and faster, shakin' like scared rabbits one day, and a bullam' up the next, and I was almost too weak to lift an ax
when a feller named Abe Brockford got out to humiliate me. He wasn't doin' any braggin' as long as I was able to be about, but when he heard how poorly I was he squared off in front of the cabin one night and shouted:

"Hello there, inside! Am I makin' a mistake in supposin' this to be the residence of Bill Hope?"

"Yo' ain't," says I as I crawls to the door in my weakness.

"Come out like a man and squar off at me," says he.

"I told him I'd been freezin' and burnin' and couldn't fight a rabbit, but that only made him wuss."

"Bill Hope, if yo've got any mercy in yo' heart come out yere and dance around while I putrenze yo' bones."

"It hurt me mighty bad to be talked to that way," said the old man, "but I was helpless about it. All I could do was to shut the door and fling my self on the bed and cuss and weep.
The old woman tried to console me,
but the feller kept his mouth goin' till I was purty nigh crazy. By and by I says to her:

"Do yo' reckon that if I prayed to the Lawd for strength my prayer
would be answered?"

"That's accordin'," she answers
"What do yo' want the strength for?"

"To go out and smash Abe Brock-ford."

"Then yo' won't git it. The Lawd ain't mixin' up in sich rows."

"But he might if yo' prayed too."

"But I shan't do it. When the critter out thar gits tired of talkin' he'll go home."

"I lay quiet for half an hour, but Abe didn't go, and when the old woman sees how bad I was feelin' she says:

"Bill, I'm willin' to try a sort of experiment. It ain't right to bother the Lawd with our troubles, and prayers and fightin' don't go together, but under the circumstances I'll do what I kin'."

"All of a sudden I begun to feel stronger, and by the time the old woman had finished I told her that I was all right to go out an' drive Abe into the airth."

"Better not go," she says as she looks troubled.

"Why not?"

"Bekase I'm not suah about it. I prayed hard 'nuff, but I haven't got the feelin' that yo' are gwine out to whop anybody. Sorter feels to me that yo'll git the worst of it."

"It was mighty cur'us about my gittin' strong," mused Bill, "and to this day I can't make it out. Perhaps it was all owin' to my madness. The old woman hung on fur me not to go, but I put her aside and rushed out. It was a darkish night, but I saw Abe standin' a few feet away and called for him. I was gwine to whop him blind in two minits, but I hadn't counted on startin' things. Fustly, the critter had got tired and gone home, and, secondly, a powerful big bar had taken his place. I knowed it as I grabbed his fur, but it was then too late. He jest hauled off with his right paw and fetched me a swat on the side of the head that put me out of it, and it was daylight befo' I came to and found myself on the bed."

"What's happened?" I asked of the old woman.

"Experimentin'," she answers.

"As how?"

"Prayin' to the Lawd to back yo' to wallop Abe Brockford. Abe slipped out and a bar slipped in, and as high as I kin make out the critter didn't stand by yo' fur shucks."

"And that's the reason you are in doubt about going to the camp meeting, is it?" I asked as he finished his story.

"It ar, stranger."

"But I don't exactly see the point."

"Plain as mud, sah. I'd go thar to fight Satan, wouldn't I?"

"In a way, yes."

"And s'pose the Lawd would slip him out on me and slip a half dozen wildcats in on me to take his place?"

Stop That Leakage

Benjamin Franklin says, "Beware of little expense; a small leak will sink a ship."

If you will stop the all-dangerous leakage in your household transactions (the nickels and dimes that go for needless luxuries) and start a savings account with this bank, you'll soon find your domestic ship on the high sea of prosperity.

I only requires a dollar to get started in the right way—and then by adding a small portion of your salary each pay day, you will be surprised at the results.

WHY HE SOLD IT

By RUTH GRAHAM

"I hear," said Jones to Rogers, "that you have sold your automobile."

"I have."

Jones was surprised at the man giving up the auto sport, for he had been an enthusiastic automobilist.

"Had an upset?"

"No."

"Found it cost too much to keep the machine in repair, I reckon."

"Not that, either."

"Well, then," looking at a handsome collier that was evidently in Rogers' company, "you've set up a dog instead of a car as less expensive and more amusing."

"I sold my auto for $600, and you couldn't buy the dog for $6,000."

"Did you pay that for him?"

"No; I didn't pay anything."

"Come, what does it all mean?"

Rogers asked Jones into the house and told the story:

"My friends always supposed from the speed I put on while traveling through the country on good straight roads that I was perfectly fearless. It wasn't so at all. I realized the danger of fast traveling, but I enjoyed the sport so well that I was willing to take the risk. Fact is, danger always adds to the zest of sport. The very thought that I might burst a tire at any moment and swerve into a telegraph pole or a stone fence gave me a pleasurable thrill. Besides these was the danger of some drunken driver coming along with a wild yelp and knocking me into the middle of next week."

"Well," interrupted Jones, "which was it that cured you of automobilizing?"

"Who's telling this story—you or I?"

"You go on."

"Nothing broke in my machine and nobody ran into me. My auto was as good as ever except for several years use, and I never had a spill while I drove her. I don't know for certain, but I think if I had been tossed through the wind shield and shot a dozen yards forward without getting killed I would have been all the better for autolog."

"But I'm not getting on with my story. I was driving along one day at a forty mile gait when, looking ahead, I saw a place where the road ran through a narrow cut. It wasn't a turnpike by any means, but one of those country roads in which, when teams meet, one must pull up in the best place to let the other pass. The narrow but I was telling you about was just wide enough to get through without scraping. On either side the ground sloped at an angle quite capable of overturning a car, no matter how slow it was moving. I craned my neck to see if any one was coming that I would meet in the cut. I didn't see an auto or a wagon, but I did see something that sent a cold chill through me—a little child toddling about right in between the two banks."

"It was near dark, and I didn't see what was in the way till I was almost on it. I gave a warning toot, but it didn't even attract the child's attention. It was so young that I couldn't tell whether it was a boy or a girl, but by its dress I concluded it was a girl. She was making a dirt heap in the road. As to age, she must have been between two or three years old."

"So much went through my mind in a few seconds that it seems there wasn't time for it all. I knew there must be a house near by or the child wouldn't have been there. I glanced to the right and the left and on the left saw a small cottage about 200 feet from the road. How I did long for some one to run from the house to get the child out of my way! But when I saw her there wasn't time for any one to go over half the distance. I looked at the right bank to see if it would be possible to run up over it without my machine turning turtle. There was no possibility of climbing it without going over on the child. If not on myself. The left bank was worse than the right."

"I've heard what an awful strain it is on a locomotive engineer to run down a human being, but had no conception of the horror of it till now. I put on my emergency brake, or tried to, but I was so rattled that I lost time in getting my foot on it. By the time I was pretty near the child I was going slow enough, but—great Scott!—what difference does it make how slow you're going when you run over a soft little bundle of flesh like that?"

"I had given up all hope when of a sudden I saw a yellow streak making from the house to the child. It was a dog, and I've never seen a train or an auto that seemed to get over the ground so quick. He made a bee line for the child, who was between the middle and the side of the road, fixed his teeth in her dress and yanked her toward the bank, getting her just on to it as I went by at the rate of about four miles an hour and stopped not twenty feet away."

"The child's mother came out, and when she learned how near death the little thing had been she pretty near fainted."

"You'll never get me into an auto again. It's one thing to get tossed over a telegraph wire yourself, but when it comes to killing a little child I'm not in it."

"I don't blame you," said Jones, "but it usually requires killing some one rather than just missing it to give a man the horrors."

How Rough Diamonds Shrink.

The loss in weight in diamonds when going through the process of cleaving and chipping and polishing amounts to from 50 to 60 per cent on the average. Accordingly, the price of a rough diamond will have to be advanced in the finished brilliant, aside from all other expenses, at least twice to three times. With the well known "softies" the loss in weight is even greater, because it is necessary to chip off so much more. Thus, the diamond Excelsior, which, in its crude raw state, weighed 971½ carats, produced two brilliants, weighing together only 340 13-32 carats, with a loss in weight of 65 per cent; and the Collinian, originally weighing 3,024½ carats, was reduced to only 980 carats, with a loss of 67 3-5 per cent.

Have the Best Last.

He who eats the best grapes from a bunch first and finishes with the poorest on the stem is likely to feel at the end that grapes are very unsatisfactory and that he does not care for any more. But if the last few grapes are good he is more than likely to reach for another bunch. And so it goes with all the gastronomic affairs of life. The dinner that starts off with a very poor soup and works through a mediocre fish to a fair entree, an excellent meat and a superb salad, concluding with unimpeachable coffee and a dessert fit for a queen, leaves a far better impression than a dinner that starts with excellent soup and progresses "downward" steadily to an atrocious finish.—Practical Housewife

Freckles

Don't Hide Them With a Veil; Remove Them With the Othine Prescription

This prescription for the removal of freckles was written by a prominent physician and is usually so successful in removing freckles and giving a clear, beautiful complexion that it is sold by your druggist under all doctors' guarantees to return the money if it fails.

Don't hide your freckles under a veil; get an ounce of othine and remove them. Even the first few applications should show a wonderful improvement, some of the lighter freckles vanishing entirely.

Be sure to ask the druggist for the double strength othine; it is this that is sold on the money-back guarantee.

AMONG THE

THE PALACE—CHARLEROI

One of the chief features of a week that was replete with exceedingly meritorious productions at the Palace theatre was "The Tiger Lily" presented in three reels on Tuesday. This Vitagraph film shows how a woman, as "fair as the lily" and as "fiery and revengeful as the tiger" in seeking the destruction of her flesh and blood to satisfy her vanity and jealousy, meets her doom. The story is one of love and of hate in which a tiger plays a real part. Of course everything turns out satisfactorily in the end, but the production of the picture is thrilling and the story is unusual. A Selig picture, "A Wild Ride" was shown in two reels as a special. Monday night's productions were "A Military Bomb" and "A Thief in the Night." On Thursday "Her Only Boy," a Lubin film and "The Smuggler," a Kalem film was shown. For Saturday a special is being announced in "Candid No. 103." The story is said to be an unusual one. Monday night of next week will be featured by a three-reel production, "The Folly of Crime." Like the Saturday feature this is understood to be an unusual production, in which there is some of the finest acting to be seen in any picture.

THE COYLE—CHARLEROI

How a woman's love for a man is unchangeable in spite of affliction and trouble was demonstrated in a picture that was produced as a special three-reel film as the Coyle this week. The title of the drama was "Greater Call." A woman loved a man and they were engaged. Another steps in and falls in love with the woman. Then after the lovers have been separated by the removal of one into the city, the man to whom the woman is engaged is hurt in a quarry accident. She does not know this and receiving no reply from her letters takes up with the city man as her new lover. Eventually she hears of the quarry accident and dropping preparations for her marriage to another, hastens to her first lover. The close shows where they are happily engaged. Other features of the week were: Monday "The Yogi," "Princess of the Valley," "Life Savers"; Tuesday, "Her Supreme Sacrifice"; "Lawbreakers," "Broken Spell"; Thursday "Last of the Madisons" and "Fallen Angel." The film, "Robinson Crusoe" has been booked for presentation shortly. It is understood to be a particularly good picture.

THE LYRIC—CHARLEROI

Showing the fraternal spirit that causes a brother to serve and protect the interests of the straying member of his family, one of the best human interest films ever produced was shown on Monday of this week at the Lyric Theatre. The film "A Brother's Loyalty" was one where the two chief roles were played by one man who represented in the different scenes the brothers. In one he depicted the character of a clergyman and the other the clergyman's brother, as the blacksheep. On Thursday a fine western drama, "The Law and the Outlaw," was shown. Chroniching events of daily occurrence and of general interest all over the world, the Pathe Weekly was a feature of Wednesday. Every Wednesday at the Lyric the Pathe pictures are shown, together usually with a Biograph. Manager Pennman announces that on Saturday a Vitagraph picture, "The Diamond Mystery" will be featured, and that two big features next week will be
